

IBIS InGold starts direct cooperation with the British Royal Mint

1st February 2021, Prague - IBIS InGold started direct cooperation with the British Royal Mint. It also expands the portfolio of products in which customers can invest. By launching this cooperation, IBIS InGold confirms and strengthens its position among the world's leading gold and silver traders.

"Cooperation with The Royal Mint opens up new opportunities for our customers to invest in precious metals. The Mint is one of the largest players on the global market", says Libor Křapka, Executive Director of IBIS InGold. And he adds: "We really appreciate that we have become an official partner of The Royal Mint".

Thanks to this cooperation, the company's product range is expanding. According to Libor Křapka, mainly gold and silver ounce investment coins from the Britannia series are one of the attractive "hot news". "We are absolutely thrilled with these products. They are elegant, you can tell at a glance that this is a really luxurious affair, and above all, there is a beautiful story behind every piece of metal," Libor Křapka praises the new additions.

The process of starting cooperation was very demanding. The Mint carefully selects its partners. "We had to prove to the Mint that we were an ideal partner for them to represent them throughout the European market. It is a prestigious company, even one of the most prestigious, which chooses its employees," says Executive Director of IBIS InGold. According to him, this is a turning point in the history of IBIS InGold, when the company confirmed its position at the forefront of precious metals traders.

The Royal Mint has been on the precious metal market for 1,100 years. It focuses on the production of unique design coins and ingots which are linked to the historical moments and personalities of Great Britain. This is also one of the largest players in the field of investment in precious metals.
